Call to Worship

Feel free to follow along with our Call to Worship from today's live-streamed worship service.

One: In the presence of God, we gather:

Many: People burdened and looking for comfort; folks whose spirits need a makeover.

One: Like little children, we surround God:

Many: Hoping for that touch which will refresh us; longing to be embraced in arms of love.

One: We look, and find a feast has been prepared for us:

Many: Bread which will give us life anew; the cup which overflows with grace and hope.

Public Worship WILL be held at 10:30 am Sunday morning.
If you are not quite ready to join us for public worship, we invite you to follow along with this printed service.

Community Prayer

O Lord, our shepherd, what good care you take of us. Let us be forever grateful to be your sheep, to know that you know each one of us by name. We are in a world of turmoil right now, God, and we need your guidance more than ever. Lead us to ways of justice and peace for all of your creation. Guide our hearts to reach out to our fellow sheep in the fold. Prevent us from straying too far from your path. Come after us when we are lost. We pray all of this in the name of our Good Shepherd, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Psalm 23

A Psalm of David.

<sup>2</sup> He makes me lie down in green pastures;
he leads me beside still waters;

<sup>3</sup> he restores my soul.
He leads me in right paths
for his name's sake.

<sup>4</sup> Even though I walk through the darkest valley,
I fear no evil;
for you are with me;
your rod and your staff—
they comfort me.

<sup>5</sup> You prepare a table before me
in the presence of my enemies;
you anoint my head with oil;
my cup overflows.

<sup>6</sup> Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me
all the days of my life,
and I shall dwell in the house of the LORD
my whole life long.

John 10:11-18

<sup>11</sup> 'I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. <sup>12</sup> The hired hand, who is not the shepherd and does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away—and the wolf snatches them and scatters them. <sup>13</sup> The hired hand runs away because a hired hand does not care for the sheep. <sup>14</sup> I am the good shepherd. I know my own and my own know me, <sup>15</sup> just as the Father knows me and I know the Father. And I lay down my life for the sheep. <sup>16</sup> I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice. So there will be one flock, one shepherd. <sup>17</sup> For this reason the Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again. <sup>18</sup> No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again. I have received this command from my Father.'

Meditation for the 4th Sunday of Easter

“One of God’s Sheep”

I once dated a guy from northeast Iowa who claimed that part of the world as “God’s country.” He was very proud to be from that region of the state. He was one of many people in my life who protested when I declared my love for sheep. He would exclaim that sheep were terrible and any cattle rancher would tell you so. Evidently, unlike cattle that graze the top of the grass, sheep tear the grass out from the roots destroying the pasture. No other livestock could graze a pasture once the sheep had gotten to it. I still persisted in my love for sheep. Now, I say this not as a person from a farm and not as someone who has raised sheep for a living. Even so, I love these woolly creatures and I have always loved the language in scripture that likens humanity to sheep. Unlike my friend from northeast Iowa, I regarded this connection between humanity and sheep as a compliment. When the Bible talks about Jesus as the Good Shepherd, the extension of this image is that we are his sheep.

When we affirm that Jesus is the Good Shepherd, we embrace the relationship between the sheep and the Shepherd. The author of our Gospel lesson today intentionally drew on imagery that wove its way through the Hebrew scriptures. Our passage from the Psalter is one of many examples of this. The author of John knew that all those hearing this description of Jesus would flash back to the characteristics of a Shepherd called by God. As our Shepherd, Jesus provides protection and tender care for us as his sheep. This protection involves saving the sheep from predators and, according to John, extended to giving up one’s life for the sheep. Caring for the sheep involved feeding them and tending to them when ill, injured, or when lambing. As our Shepherd, Jesus knows each of us by name.

So, as we continue with this imagery, it follows that we are the sheep. At first glance this may seem to be a bad thing. Sheep are often described as dumb and stubborn animals. In my opinion, they often get bad press. But, with this image Jesus demonstrated the trust the sheep have in the shepherd. The sheep must be willing to follow the Shepherd wherever they are led. Like the sheep, we respond when called by name. Each of us is known intimately by the Shepherd. And we often miss it, but the sheep all have to stick together. So, is being a sheep of God so bad? Lest we shrug this image aside, we are reminded that Jesus is often referred to as the Lamb of God. Jesus, like a lamb, was vulnerable and innocent. Jesus entrusted himself to the love and care of God as a lamb would have trust in the shepherd. Jesus, as the Lamb of God, had confidence in the love and care of his shepherd, God.

Perhaps all this explains some of the attraction to our scripture lessons today. Psalm 23 is perhaps one of the best known passages from the Bible. Churched and unchurched people alike know it and many can recite it by heart. There is something appealing about the Shepherd described here. In just a few short verses the Psalmist covered all of life, the good times and the bad. The Shepherd artfully leads the sheep through dangerous and threatening territory. One of the most compelling components is the way in which the Shepherd leads the sheep to lush and green pastures. This Psalm of Trust really says it all in compelling and beautiful language. So, perhaps it is not so bad being “one of God’s Sheep” after all.

AMEN!

Song of the Week

The King of Love My Shepherd Is

Text: Henry Williams Baker, 1868

Music: Irish Melody

The King of love my shepherd is,
whose goodness faileth never;
I nothing lack if I am his,
and he is mine forever.

Where streams of living water flow
my ransomed soul he leadeth,
and where the verdant pastures grow,
with food celestial feedeth.

Perverse and foolish oft I strayed,
but yet in love he sought me,
and on this shoulder gently laid,
and home, rejoicing, brought me.

In death's dark vale I fear no ill
with thee, dear Lord, beside me;
thy rod and staff my comfort still,
thy cross before to guide me.

Though spread'st a table in my sight;
thy unction grace bestoweth;
and O what transport of delight
from thy pure chalice floweth!

And so through all the length of days
thy goodness faileth never;
Good Shepherd, may I sing thy praise
within thy house forever.
